College of Graduate and Continuing Studies, Norwich University

Course Description

This seminar is the second of two focused on a comprehensive examination of the key functional areas of HR. We will use the 15 Human Resources (HR) Functional Areas of knowledge, as outlined by Society of Human Resource Management (SHRM), as the basis for SHRM Certification (SHRM-CP and SHRM-SCP) and as our framework in both courses. This framework is adaptable so it can be used as a basis for other certifications such as Assurance of Learning, Human Resource Certification Institute (PHR, SPHR, and GPHR) as well as World At Work certification.

The HR Functional Area of Business & HR Strategy forms its own Knowledge Domain of Strategy; the remaining 15 HR Functional Areas form the remaining three Knowledge Domains of People, Organization, and Workplace.

The HR Functional Areas focus on providing the organization with information they need to achieve organizational objectives and to improve operational efficiency. Students will analyze an organization and utilize one or more of the HR Functional Areas to design a strategic solution for the organization. (6 credits)

Academic Honesty and the Norwich University Honor Code

A student must submit work that represents the student's own original analysis and writing. Copying another's work is not appropriate. If the student relies on the research or writing of others, the student must cite those sources. Words or ideas that require citations include, but are not limited to all hardcopy or electronic publications, whether copyrighted or not, and all verbal or visual communication when the content of such communication clearly originates from an identifiable source. While students are encouraged to seek editing feedback, extensive revisions of one's work by another person is considered a lack of academic honesty, as it is representing another student's work as one's own.
